A Checklist of the Birds of Kleb Woods Nature Preserve

Fourth Edition

By: Fred Collins & Kendra Kocab

Commissioner Steve Radack welcomes you to Kleb Woods Nature Preserve. It was purchased by the county in 1991 as a nature and wildlife park. The woods are the product of Elmer Kleb, who was born on this prairie farm property in 1907 and died in the woods he created in 1999. The woods are dominated by Loblolly Pine. Other trees include Eastern Red Cedar, Water Oak, Shumard Oak, Live Oak, Sugarberry and Pecan. The areas with higher diversity of oaks and other broadleaf trees are favored by migrating songbirds. Yaupon dominates the understory and is favored by wrens, thrushes, robins, and waxwings. There is a remnant prairie near the entrance to the Nature Center. The park has several wetlands frequented by herons and egrets. The pines at wetland edges are good places to find Brown-headed Nuthatch. The open areas along Draper Road are favored by mockingbirds, shrikes, sparrows and other open-country species. The entrance path to the nature center and Draper Road are the best areas for Greater Roadrunner. This checklist includes 234 species that have been recorded since 2002.

Key: Abundant | Common | Rare
